The A-Z of Global Warming is an assimilation of the latest, most up to date scientific knowledge on the subject based on information sourced from NASA, The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), The Stern Review on The Economics of Climate Change, The World Wildlife Fund, The National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), Mongabay as well as other relevant organisations. Find out all the answers to the above and much more inside this book...

ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Simon Rosser works as a personal injury lawyer in Cardiff. Interests include geography, astronomy, travel, and writing. This is the author's first book, having been inspired to write the book after watching Al Gore's documentary, An Inconvenient Truth, in November 2006. All information in the book is based on the latest scientific understanding of the subject sourced from scientific papers and information. As a lawyer, an essential legal skill is the ability to sift through lots of paperwork and information in order to extract the most important, salient points, and this skill has proved invaluable in putting this A-Z guide together from the vast amounts of information and data out there on the subject of global warming.

... a useful simplification in an unusual format of some very complex issues" – Sir Crispin Tickell GCMG KCVO

"... an excellent, witty and imaginative book that looks at climate change through the lens of simplicity without the jargon and scientific detail which so often dogs this subject. It has a humour and tongue-in-cheek approach which highlights both the importance of the subject, but the need to engage the reader and not fill him or her with a hopeless sense of guilt. Enjoy." Tim Smit, CBE, CE of Eden Project
